Architecture shaped by market, river and time

On the River Kennet, Newbury's townscape brings together medieval trade, parish life, Victorian civic ambition and the working waterways that helped the market town grow.

CIVIC GOTHIC	MEDIEVAL HEART	WATER & TRADE
Town Hall Completed in the late nineteenth century, its gables, pointed arches, patterned brickwork and clock tower give Market Place a confident civic landmark.	St Nicolas & the market The Grade I parish church anchors a historic centre where timber framing and long-established street lines recall Newbury's trading past.	River Kennet Bridges, wharves and waterside paths reveal how transport, commerce and landscape continue to shape the town's character.
